Is there something in your life you would really like to do next, but you are not feeling confident about it, so you avoid it? Do you have something coming up in your life that you are anxious about, and you want to raise your level of confidence about it? Next time you are feeling particularly low in confidence about something you need to undertake, ask yourself these questions. (Or ask a trusted colleague to ask you them.) These questions are helpful when helping others boost their confidence too.

First, recall a time when you were successful at doing that particular thing in the past (or doing something similar). Then ask yourself: What was key to my success? What did I do then that made me successful? How did I manage to do that? What is one thing I did then that I am not doing now?

1. Considering what I am embarking on now, what is already going well? What small successes have I had so far?
2. How can I do more of what is already going well?
3. How have I managed to get this far?
4. What does that tell me about myself?
5. What have I done in the past that might help me now?
6. What personal qualities and strengths do I have that will help me be successful?
7. What ideas do I have for solving this?
8. Who can help me with this?
9. Who would have a different perspective on this?

Take some time with these questions and try to recall your past experiences. When you realize you have done this same endeavor successfully in the past, you will quickly shift into believing you can do it again. If you haven't done exactly the same thing, contemplate similar parts of the experience that you mastered in the past. (For example, many years ago, I was asked to deliver my first ever keynote address. I had already delivered numerous workshops, but never a keynote. I was not feeling confident about it.

After asking myself the questions above, I realized that I had actually mastered many keynote skills in all my years of workshop delivery. Taking the leap to keynote deliveries no longer seemed as daunting. I worked on the gaps to improve my skills and my confidence shot up again.)

The other questions also get you thinking about the progress you have already made with this accomplishment, rather than your shortcomings. This gets you thinking about everything that is already working in your favor, and you will experience a boost in confidence. Once you have asked yourself the questions above and are feeling a shift in your confidence, ask yourself this important question: What is one small step I can take to get myself closer to my goal? Commit to taking that step.

Commit to taking that step.
