

Jim “Wolf” Yoxall, MA, CSC, is the Spiritual/Wellness Director at Pavillon—a center for the treatment of substance use disorders (SUD) and co-occurring mental health (MH) issues located in Mill Spring, N.C. Wolf provides spiritual direction and wellness counseling, spiritual group process and lectures on the importance of spirituality and awareness practices in SUD treatment.

Wolf served as an adjunct professor at Mary Baldwin College in Virginia, teaching in the fields of world religions and Chinese history. Prior to that Wolf served as the Spiritual Director for the Center of Truth and Vision, as Regional Director of an intensive in-home counseling agency and operated a private counseling practice. Wolf is certified in Outdoor Education, Martial Arts and worked extensively with Native American and Chinese cultures. Wolf has been guiding people in all walks of life, providing spiritual guidance and practical wellness applications for over thirty years.

For more information about Pavillon, contact:

Tom Roman, J.D.
Business Development
Mobile- (919) 270-2876
Email- troman@pavillon.org

Or scan below to join our email list:

